

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

VOL. 5--NO. 36.

MAYSVILLE, KY., MONDAY, JANUARY 4, 1886.

PRICE ONE CENT.

Ayer's
SUGAR
CATHARTIC
COATED
PILLS
CURE
Headache, Nausea, Dizziness, and Drowsiness. They stimulate the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels, to healthy action, assist digestion, and increase the appetite. They combine cathartic, diuretic, and tonic properties of the greatest value, are a purely vegetable compound, and may be taken by children, infants, and even by men or adults. E. L. Thomas, Framingham, Mass., writes: "For a number of years I was subject to violent headaches, arising from a disordered condition of the stomach and bowels. About a year ago I commenced the use of Ayer's Pills, and have not had a headache since." W. P. Hamlin, Gorham P. Co., York, Co., Out, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the last thirty years, and can safely say that I have never found their equals as a cathartic and tonic. I am now in full health again." C. D. Moore, Elgin, Ill., writes: "Indigestion, Headache, and Loss of Appetite, had so weakened and debilitated my system, that it was obliged to give up work. After being under the doctor's care for two weeks, without getting any relief, I began taking Ayer's Pills. My appetite and strength returned, and I was soon enabled to resume my work, in perfect health."

Ayer's Pills,

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

Happiness

results from their true contentment, which recreates perishing health of body and mind. You can possess it, if you will purify and invigorate your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. E. M. Howard, Newport, N. H., writes: "I suffered for years with Sarsaparilla humors. After using two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I great relief. It has entirely restored me to health." James French, Atchison, Kan., writes: "To all persons suffering from Liver Complaint, I would strongly recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with a severe liver complaint for three years, when a friend advised me to take this medicine. It gave me great relief, and has cured me." Mrs. H. M. Kidder, 41 Dwight St., Boston, Mass., writes: "For several years I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in my family. I never feel safe, even

Found

At Home

It. As a liver medicine and general purifier of the blood, it has no equal." Mrs. A. B. Allen, Winter Park, Va., writes: "My youngest child, two years of age, was taken with Bright's Disease, which was fatal to cure. We tried plasters, but he continued to grow worse, and finally became so reduced in flesh that we could only move him upon a pillow. It was suggested by one of the doctors that Seroful might be the cause of the trouble. We procured a bottle of and commenced giving it to him. It surely worked wonders, for in a short time, he was completely cured."

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Sold by all Druggists.

Price $1; Six bottles, $5.
Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell,
Mass., U. S. A.

T. CURLEY,

Sanitary Plumber,

Gas & Steam Fitter,

Cuts a new system of House Heating, Ventilation, Bath rooms, fitted up with hot and cold water a specialty. Also a large supply of

Iron, Lead and Stone Pipe,

Globe, Angle and Check Valves, Pump, Rubber Hose, Chandeliers, Brass and Glass, etc. All work done at a reasonable rate. T. J. CURLEY, 100 Main Street, opposite the Hotel Dusdon, Maysville, Ky.

J. M. DEWITT C. FRANKLIN,

Dentist,

Offices Sutton Street, next door to Post Office.

A TRIUMPH AND DEATH

A SINGER MAKES A SUCCESSFUL DEBUT AND THEN SUICIDES.

"Come Back! Come Back! If You Won't, I Will Kill Myself!"—A Lover's Quarrel—Pastor's Patients—The Last Inoculation—Home Again.

BUDA PEESTH, Jan. 4.—A tragedy in real life has cast a gloom over the theatrical circles of this city. A few days ago Franszil Aranka, a young and romantic girl, came to Buda Pesth with a sister to study for the operatic stage. She was faced with a charming voice and a beautiful face, and soon gained an engagement.

A few days ago a actress made a brilliant debut in the Kirov Theater, in "La Bohème." During the evening she was overwhelmed with compliments and bouquets, which she had not. Miss Annie Huot's singing, however, seemed to have turned the heads of the critics, who forced a quarrel upon a woman whose singer to whom she was engaged, because he had declared himself unable to neglect his hobby to accompany her on a visit to her mother.

The young larvauling, however, was smooth-skinned, and the bewitched couple had said and made triumps, when, as the engineer was on his way to the station with a friend, he met a woman who had been bitten on the arm. "Come back! come back! If you won't go to my sister's with me I'll kill myself!" And then she ran back to her home. Knowing she had three times already attempted suicide, the lover at once hastened after her.

He burst open the door of her bedroom, and found Franszil Aranka already stretched on the sofa in convulsions. Noticing a strong smell of cyanide gas, he dispatched his friend to get the doctor, and then ran off. In a few minutes the unhappy girl rallied sufficiently to explain that she had poisoned herself with the contents of a bottle of the acid stolen from the laboratory. Her lover, after doing all he could for her, left her to die. The coroner inquest found her dead.

He burst open the door of her bedroom, and found Franszil Aranka already stretched on the sofa in convulsions. Noticing a strong smell of cyanide gas, he dispatched his friend to get the doctor, and then ran off. In a few minutes the unhappy girl rallied sufficiently to explain that she had poisoned herself with the contents of a bottle of the acid stolen from the laboratory. Her lover, after doing all he could for her, left her to die. The coroner inquest found her dead.

Ireland.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Cable News company has commissioned Mr. Frederick G. Smith, an Irish sympathizer, to proceed to Achill, Mayo, and other parts of Ireland on the west coast of Ireland. He is to inquire into the condition of the starving peasants and send full reports by mail and telegraph of the actual state of affairs for publication in the British press.

William Stansbury, member of parliament for Easthills, Central News, #30; London staff of the Cable News, #25. To latest reports from the poverty stricken island, are heartrending and pitiful. It is based on trustworthy authority, that the sultan would recognize the union of Bulgaria and Eastern Roumania on certain conditions and provide the powers concerned.

Prussia.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Berlin dispute at the standard says arrangements are progressing for a meeting of the three emperors next summer, during the Austrian army maneuvers in Germany.

Bulgaria.

DUBLIN, Jan. 4.—The fire in the main gasometer of the Dublin gas works, has interrupted the coal supply which came in from the intense heat, is still burning.

Canal Project Revived.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—The Tim's says the project abandoned in 1881 to connect the Rhone by means of a canal with the Mediterranean has been revived.

Prussia's Project.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Mr. Bismarck has agreed to receive a plenipotentiary from the Hungarian government.

Hungarian Affairs.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—The morning session of the Hungarian river miners' strike at West End was held and was largely attended by forty-two delegates, representing twenty-five pits, were present. The subject of compensation for miners' wives and widows was discussed, and a lengthy discussion was had.

No vote has been taken as yet, but the indications are that the strike will be at an end and work resume on the operators' terms. Although very recent, it is believed that a number of the delegations of certain metallurgical works in Ireland.

This and other schemes of modified Home Rule will be discussed at the special conference to be held in Dublin.

Moreau is threatened by Mr. Philip Connell, the member of Parliament for Louth, who repudiated by Mr. Parnell in the last case and was defeated by Col. Nolan, the Conservative candidate. Mr. Connell telegrams to the cable news that he is determined to expose the fact of Messrs. Parcell, Hilliard and Harrington by which they defraud him in his birthday, where his friends and neighbors are shocked, but he is prepared to stand by his principles.

The gentleman names are charged by Mr. Connell with being "in connection with certain local sportsmen" exercised under influence of foreign capitalists and practiced frauds on the wages which were awarded to miners against fraudulent practices in mining. He will therefore ask that Col. Nolan be summoned and a warrant issued for a new election.

As an electrician, Mr. Connell is anxious to understand why Col. Nolan or any other candidate who may be put up against him. The hearing on the Col. Nolan petition will be had at the end of his month, and subsequent developments are expected.

Various absurd rumors have been circulated lately to the effect that the Chinese were about to begin a war of extermination on the part of the Chinese legation in this city and was assured that China had asked for nothing and would make nothing from foreign capitals except upon the basis of a loan. This is not true, as it is thought, and the minister did not say that he was investigating the indications of Christmas eve are still shrouded in mystery, but others assert they will be able to clear up everything and bring the guilty parties to justice in a few days.

Damage Suit.

WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 4.—For $100,000 have been brought against the Plymouth Watch Company by relatives of persons who died from fever during last summer's epidemic. The plaintiffs allege that the fever was caused by the use of unsafe water turned into return for concessions but none that far relieved was quite satisfactory. The delegates of the German syllable which, it is believed, will be held in the winter of 1886.

Chinese legation will be here on Christmas day. They are not likely to succeed on the terms indicated by the syndicate which seeks to build the Chinese government to buy all its railroad plant and guns from the so-called German manufacturers, the chief ones being the Krupp Steel works at Essen.

Prusser's Treatment.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—When the Newark children received their inoculation M. Pasteur gave them a New Year present an orange colored pencil, a small book and some photographs of each child. These will be given to the studio and sent for their pictures. The children will receive their last inoculation and will then stay from Hayres on the 1st of January.

Four hundred students with President Grover at the Elvins Palace. Despite the political crisis the conversation turned upon hydrocephalus and the unprecedented number of mad dogs this year in France, Austria and England. The president, of the republic, became much interested in the case, and reported from Angoulême and asked M. Pasteur all sorts of questions about the Newark children.

Another remarkable proof of the efficiency of Pasteur's treatment was provided by the case of three children of Toussaint, near the Belgian frontier. All were bitten by the same dog, and there was a great suspicion among the townspeople whether the animal was the same that had bitten the Newark children. To M. Pasteur, and the other two, who had been bitten only slightly, remained at home. Toussaint, however, after a long and strenuous treatment, recovered, and was soon able to walk, while the others died of rabies last week, while the one which was treated by M. Pasteur, is alive and well.

Empress William.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A Berlin delegate to the Daily News says it is officially announced that no procession or demonstration will take place in honor of the twentieth anniversary of the ascension of the Emperor William to the throne, but that a military review will be held in the courtyard connected with the palace.

All the members of the imperial family will be present. After the service the emperor will attend a military review in the courtyard of the palace, and then leave the city.

On the top of the sage reflection recommended by the Emperor, it is difficult to know how many millions he policy on the silver dollar question, on the tariff question, on the civil service question and on other questions is going to have in consequence. It is not strange that he should be asked to give away," was the thoughtful but frank comment of a very shrewd public man here. "I had no idea that remained so much."

On and on the top of the sage reflection recommended by the Emperor, it is difficult to know how many millions he policy on the silver dollar question, on the tariff question, on the civil service question and on other questions is going to have in consequence. It is not strange that he should be asked to give away," was the thoughtful but frank comment of a very shrewd public man here. "I had no idea that remained so much."

On the other hand, Democratic Congressmen and politicians are becoming curioser. They wonder whether it can be true that the president has the most confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are those who give friendly consideration and support to its recommendations. It is not unnatural that a president and his cabinet officers should be inclined to hold more confidence in the recommendations of those who, other things being equal, have views with them and would naturally recommend to appointment persons whose views on particular points are in harmony with their own. Whether the president has more confidence in those who are in favor of him, or in those who are not, remains to be seen.

The friends of an administration are

THE EVENING BULLETIN

MONDAY, JANUARY 4, 1886.

At Louisville there were 1,500 marriage licenses issued last year.

LOUISVILLE's business improvements for the past year are valued at $2,600,000.

The Revenue Collections for the Sixth (Covington) District last month amounted to $303,400.00.

GEORGIA steps forward with a cotton crop of 932,000 bales for last year and a crop of 300,000 bushels.

The Sun of New York: "Of all living politicians and statesmen, Charles Stearns Parnell is apparently the ablest."

According to the Health Officer's report, 3,235 persons "shuffled off this mortal coil" in Louisville last year.

The public printing and binding for the past year cost the State a little over $1,000,000. Therefore it has cost about $25,000 or $30,000 a year.

The receipts at the U. S. Treasury Department for the month of December are estimated at $20,000,000 and the expenditures at $15,000,000.

PARNELL was aided materially in his recent struggle by contributions from this country. About $80,000 was sent over to help along the good cause.

CHICAGO would hardly part with the "high license system." It has lessened her saloons from 13,000 to 9,000 and increased her revenue $1,300,000.

The young men are on top in the present Legislature. There are more "kids" (that's not exactly the word) in the Senate than was ever before known.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a call for $10,000,000 of 3 percent bonds, the principal and interest to be paid on the 1st day of next month.

A REWARD of $150 has been offered by the Governor for the apprehension of Platte the murderer of an epileptic patient at the Lexington Asylum recently.

DARHUR started out on the new year with a big conflagration. D. M. Ferry & Co., the seamens, were the principal sufferers. The loss is placed at $1,500,000.

ESTIMATES made by the Department of Agriculture place the value of last year's corn crop at $335,000,000. This is $5,000,000 less than the value of the previous crop.

The Legislature will consider a resolution to-day in opposition to local and special bills. Such bills ought to be "slid track" to give room for matters of public welfare.

The New York Sun says: "Last week's score over gold exports was, as the Sun pointed out, entirely groundless. The amount sent was trifling, and was taken by a single steamer. Now comes a cable dispatch saying that £50,000 in gold is on its way from London to Halifax. This indicates that no more will be drawn from us for the present, at least."

REPRESENTATIVE THOMSON, of Mercer County, has some sensible views on the present condition of this State. He says: "Our jury system certainly needs overhauling. At present it is a farce. I hope by the end of this session the law may be so amended as to make it possible for an intelligent gentleman to serve on a jury. I am tired of seeing men who read newspapers excluded from the jury box."

A WRITER in the Louisville Commercial says:

"Mr. Carlisle has steadily grown in favor as a Presidential candidate in 1888. He is said to have received assurance from Iowa and Michigan that the Democrats of those States, as well as many low tariff Republicans, will give him a cordial support if he shall succeed! in securing the nomination. In the South no one is more popular than he, and it is believed by his friends that before the close of the present Congress, he will be so favorably known in the New England and middle States as to secure for him from those sections as large a following as any Democrat who could be named in that connection."

SAYS the Frankfort Yeoman: "The re-election of Charles Offutt, as Speaker of the House, is one of the highest compliments that has been conferred upon any young Kentuckian. He was chosen Speaker last session, and served with such distinguished ability and impartiality, that his re-election this time was a foregone conclusion. He was antagonized by one of the ablest and most popular men in the State, Hon. A. A. Spaulding, of Union, a former Senator, but a gentleman who for a number of years has been out of public life, and who, considering his long absence from the field, made a good fight, and lost none of his prowess by the failure. Mr. Offutt is one of the youngest men who has served in the Speaker's chair."

HOW VANDERBILT DIED

THE FATAL INTERVIEW BETWEEN HIM AND PRESIDENT GARRETT.

A Story That Has Not Been Told Until Now—Charged With Gross Breach of Faith—Auger of the Millions Brings on the Attack of Death.

New York, Jan. 4.—The story of the real subject being discussed by Mr. W. H. Vanderbilt and Mr. James J. Hill, when the former was stricken with epilepsy, is now known with the purchase of West Shore in the interest of the New York Central. A contract existed between the West Shore and the Baltimore & Ohio, granting to the latter the the telephone wires over the former's lines. As soon as the West Shore was possessed under the control of Dr. Norvin Green, president of the Western Union, the Auger company saw an opportunity of which he took full time in availing himself. Western Union was a rival of the Baltimore & Ohio, and the Western Union had a similar contract with the New York Central as did the B. & O. with the West Shore. In early December with Dr. Green, Mr. Vanderbilt and Mr. Depew. The very morning of the day of Mr. Vanderbilt's death he did something besides holding a business conference, he sat down and began to smoke, looking at his hand and eating his luncheon. All these latter movements were exceedingly descriptive of the stories of his death, but not a mention is to be found in the papers. I do not know what he did and that something was nothing less than the holding of an interview with Dr. Norvin Green. Mr. Depew substantially admits that such an interview was held "either that day or the day before." Dr. Green says he was being put point blank, openly and seriously about that such an interview was held.

Under these circumstances it is, perhaps, to be greatly wondered at that, in Mrs. Depew's words, "there was no mystery in having a talk with Mr. Vanderbilt." It is here put practically in the words of the man who was the author of the West Shore contemplated disregarding the Baltimore & Ohio contract, and the Auger company, holding a meeting with Dr. Green, and offering to pay him a sum which would yield to him nearly two years ago. I am glad it is a man who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 4.—At the expiration was celebrated the emancipation proclamation of President Lincoln, and about ten thousand people participated in the exercises. Addresses were given by Dr. J. C. Jackson, Governor of Louisiana, Bishop Ward, Mr. Titus, Maj. Lurie, Bishop Madeline and others. It was a noticeable incident that every white man who spoke except Bishop Madeline had said that the gun of the Washington Artillery company of the war, which participated in sixty battles for the Confederacy, fired the salutes in honor of the day.

THE MEXICO NOT A MONSTER.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 4.—James Phillips, who was seriously wounded in the fight at San Jacinto, was outraged and surprised, still in a very critical condition, but was arrested, charged with being his wife's murderer. The Mexican who was arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the recent outrages, turns out to be a rag picker, which may account for his possession of the bloody clothes.

ADRIAN L. MELLON.

THE CONSPIRACY IN MEXICO—Mrs. Coolidge's Highly Spotted Message.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—Adrian L. Mellon, of Boston, has been traced by a detective to Dnipropetrovsk, a famous hot bath resort five miles from Novorossiysk, Russia. He plans as soon as possible to go to New Orleans to ascertain if he will be extradited and to inform in the negative. Mrs. Coolidge is in Charles street jail, where she will remain until trial. Following is a verbatim copy of the message which Mrs. Coolidge was writing in the telegraph office when she was arrested:

"TO ADRIAN MELLON, St. James hotel, Boston:

"ROOSE wanted opposite to house. Work to do, don't know sure. Send party away without fail as before. Send money and where to have money paid. We want those papers they have."

The party to be sent away was Mellon's wife, the husband of the intended victim. The paper was the criminal contract held by James Dohme alias Bull.

J. E. DEWEY.

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I am not dead, but I am worse than that. I am suffering at present. I was blamed before I was guilty. Now I am guilty, and G. R. Hawley, a boat and shoe commercial trader, is responsible for my poor soul. I could not bear to see you again. I yield to him who has been led astray and not my poor sister, who will see that the wages of my sin is death. I am dying God help me."

The Auger people are wealthy, and were searching for her when she entered the house.

THE WINGS OF SIN IS DEATH.

TOUCHED JAMES J. Hill, a beautiful girl of 20, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a commercial druggist's room. She left the following letter:

"DEAR FATHER: I hear you are looking for me. I could not bear to see you. I

